Alex. Russell Meets Painful Accident -(ourt Notes-Appearance of Sait Lake Opera Company.

Alexander Russell, who, for several years past, has been deliveryman for Ezra Richardson's grocery store, met with a painful accident yesterday, which will disable him for several weeks. He was preparing to take out a load of groceries and in jumping out of the wagon his toe caught on the side of the wagon bed throwing him violently on the pavement in front of the store. He struck on his hands and knees, breaking his left knee cap and where the broken bone was set and he was releved of his sufferings as much WATERWORKS CONTROVERSY. The waterworks controversy having terminated, temporarily at least, pat-rons are now coming in and paying their water rates. The city council last night had a special meeting to consider the situation and transconsider the situation and trans-acted all its business in executive session. It is known, however, that Counilman Jones introduced illing on the city engineer for an estimate for a new waterworks system of the extent covered by the present systen and capable of sustaining 170 pounds of pressure, the estimate to cover the entire cost of everything in the way of material and labor. The purpose of this, it is said, was two-fold: First, the council, or a portion of its members, contemplate the construc-tion of such a system; second, it is still hoped that some method may be and to compel the sale of the present system to the city at the actual cost in accordance with the terms of the original franchise.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

Rattlesnake poison is the singular remedy for leprosy brought forward by Dr. M. de Moura, of Brazil. A na-tive belief is that a survivor of rattlesnake bite is proof against this disease, and he has carefully pressed the poison glands and administered it to fifteen leprous patients—to some internally and to others in the form of a sub-cutaneous spray. The results have been so favorable that he is convinced the prefected treatement will become a genuine cure. A distinguished Ger-man pharmacist, while admitting that this conclusion may be justified, points out that the snake poison in quanity kills lepers as easily as other persons.

A useful imitation celluloid is produced, according to a German method, by dissolving in 16 parts by weight of glacial acid 18 parts of nitrocellulose, and adding 5 parts of gelatine. Gentle heating and stirring are necessary.

After the mass has swelled, it is mixed with 7.5 parts of 96 per cent alcohol, with continued stirring. The sirupy product is poured into molds, or after further dilution may be spread in thin layers on glass. As an underlay for sensitive photographic films, the ma-terial has important advantages, not the least being that it remains flat in developing.

It is often incovenient to use camera in libraries. A new method of obtaining reproductions of books consists in placing a piece of cardboard coated with luminous paint behind the engraving or writing to be copied and laying a photographic plate on the face for 18 to 50 minutes. The plate is trans-fered to the book and back to a dark box under a suitable cloth.

A book on the ears as an index of character having been published by an English authoress, a learned reviewer Dr. A. Keith, mentions his own elabor ate study of the ears of more than forty thousand people, including 800 criminals and 2,000 insane persons, besides those of 300 apes. He was forced to conclude that the ears gave no clue to personal traits.

The great problem before the en-gineer, states Prof. J. A. Ewin, is the efficient utilization of heat energy. The than that of Watt's time, but much remains to be done. One possibility is the use of steam at a higher temperature in engines, and a system of thus "superheated" steam is now being introduced from Germany, by which 11% pounds of coal can be made to yield horse-power one hour, against about 2 pounds required by the best ordinary engines. From gas engines, a gain. 1 horse-power per hour may be obtain-ed for 1 pound of coal. The modern turbine engine, as developed by the Hon. Charles Parsons, is remarkable not only because balancing troubles are removed, but also because, in its latest form, it gives a greater return for a given quantity of steam than any other

The belief that buildings over the craters of slumbering volcanoes must be in a state of constant tremor unknown in the more stable regions is disproven by A. Ricco and L. Franco. Tromometric observations have been made at the observatory near the summit of Mount Etna at a height of nearly 10,000 feet, and at that of Catania, at the foot of the mountain, readings having been taken six times a for nearly eight years. The crater station proved to be more quiet. The tromometer was in motion in 62 per cent of the observations at Catania. but in only 46 per cent on Etna. During a rough sea the trembling is never absent at Catania, while a strong wind has more effect than on the mountain. A noiseless alarm clock would prove seasonable din. The suggestion is made that a silent alarm can be given by a boon to a host of sufferers from un-focussing an electric lamp upon the head of the person to be awakened, and arranging a switch so that the current to light the lamp would be turned on by the clock at the desired time. It is claimed that the flash of light would invariably arouse the sleeper.

The mystery of poisoning from arsenical wall papers has been solved by the discovery of an organism that feeds on arsenic. This is a mold. Pencillium brevicaule, and under its influence the paper emits a gas, diethyl arsin, to which the poisonous effects upon persons living in the room are found to be due.

In the hail-prevention experiments in France and Italy, the acetylene cannon seems to have given the greatest promise as a safe and ecomonical apparatus for bombarding the clouds. It consists of a generator, in which rie acetylene is prodeed and mixed with air, and a strong upright iron sylinder. with a narrow iron funnel extending upwards. The gaseous mixture is fired by an electric lighter near the bottom of the cyclinder. The replacing of lost parts by new growths is a power of some animals that was given much interest by experiments of naturalists in the eighteenth century. Among the striking facts now learned, Prof. J. Arthur Thomas finds that an earthworm may regrow a head or tail, or a tail in place of a head; a starfish arm with a fragment of disc may become a whole an-imal; a crustacean may regenerate a lost limb and sometimes an antenna instead of an eye; a snail may replace its long eye-bearing horn many times in succession; a newt may get a new leg. or an eye or a lense from an ivis margin; a lizard may recover its lost tail, and a cock the greater part of its beak. What is known as Lessonan's law teaches that regenerative capacity tends to occur in these animals and in those parts of animals which, in natural conditions, are most liable to injury

The novel idea of a German pharma. cist is to impregnate cod-liver oil, cast or oil and olive oil with liquid carbonic noid under pressure. The effervescence set up when the oil is poured out to be taken gives to the medicine a rleasent prickling taste; and a further effect the carbonic acid is to keep the oils from spoiling.
